Love You More

Emily Giffin

Billie has built the perfect life. Her medical practice in New York City is thriving, and she's finally found the right partner in Dean after years spent trying to move on from her high-school sweetheart, Mick. Their young love had been intense and true, but distance and ambition pulled them apart when she left Wisconsin for medical school.

Then one morning, just after she's accepted Dean's romantic marriage proposal, Billie's phone rings. It's Mick – calling for the first time in nearly a decade. His news is urgent and in a moment, everything changes.

As Billie boards a plane back to Wisconsin, her past comes rushing in – her hometown friendships, the love she and Mick shared, and the choices that shaped them all. What awaits her is a reckoning with what she's lost, what she's built, and what she still wants.

Don't miss ... The Boleyn Secret

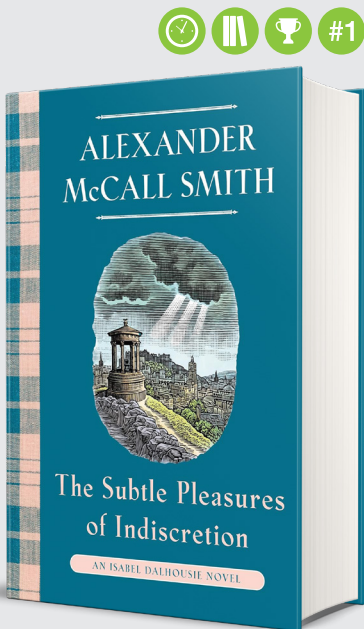

Alison Weir

At 12 years old, Katherine Carey attends her aunt, Queen Anne Boleyn, as she goes to the scaffold. Horrified by what she witnesses, Katherine is convinced that King Henry VIII is a murderer and has sent an innocent woman to a terrible death.

Although the Boleyn family, once so influential at court, has now fallen from favour, Katherine still manages to secure a coveted role as companion to her now-motherless cousin, the young Lady Elizabeth. Bound by Boleyn blood, the two girls grow as close as sisters, though Katherine has trouble ignoring the sly looks thrown her way and continual whispers behind her back. Only when her mother lies dying does Katherine learn the life-shattering truth that the Boleyns have been hiding for years.

It is a secret that follows Katherine throughout her life, as she flees religious persecution with her husband and lives abroad in fear, returning home only when Elizabeth becomes queen. But the bond between the Boleyn cousins will never be the same again.

Isabel Dalhousie #16
Alexander McCall Smith

Isabel Dalhousie has an unwavering commitment to her principles, so she is often asked to advise on the sensitive, personal affairs of others.

When Isabel receives a surprise visit from a friend who has discovered the existence of a long-lost brother, she faces this quandary in her usual thoughtful way. The friend has always held her father in high regard, and is worried that knowledge of his affair will tarnish her siblings' perception of him. Meanwhile, Isabel's husband Jamie has been offered the opportunity to play in a series of concerts in London. After meeting the series coordinator, it becomes clear that the woman has a massive crush on Jamie. Isabel isn't sure whether to reveal the woman's intentions. Should she tell Jamie of her suspicions, or would that mean calling his talent and loyalty into question?

And finally, the ever-frustrating Professor Lettuce returns, this time embroiled in a ridiculous dispute with Professor Dove. Somehow, Isabel gets dragged into resolving the affair. As always, she will have to use her pragmatic sensibility and kindness to navigate these tricky situations with her customer.

The Last Lady B

Eloisa James

In the depths of winter, Lady Genevieve Hughes, her pet piglet and her septuagenarian husband travel to a haunted abbey in the Scottish Highlands. Evie is excited to meet a ghost (perhaps one of her husband's three previous wives), but didn't expect the funny, quirky guests to become the friends she's never had. And she certainly didn't imagine meeting Sir Godric Everly, a sardonic, witty solicitor who loathes her husband.

Yet as secrets and lies turn Evie's world upside down, Sir Godric becomes the one person whom she can trust.

When ghosts, multiple wills and a shocking marriage certificate bring Lord Burnsby's past crashing into his present, Burnsby promptly dies, leaving Evie free to remarry ... though as a virgin wife, now a virgin widow, she is more unnerved by the marriage bed than a spectral visit.

More importantly, she has to figure out whose identity is false, whose vows are dishonourable, whose truths could destroy her reputation – and where her heart belongs.

Blunt Instrument

Dell Chandler Mysteries #1
Amy Bloom

The case of the bludgeoned lecturer has all of Cromwell University reeling, even though the elderly Professor Bullfinch wasn't particularly well liked. His ornery nature and Old World approach to campus politics ruffled more than a few feathers over the years. And tensions within his department mean there are more suspects than mourners in the wake of his death. The murder weapon – a bronze bust of Nathaniel Hawthorne – seems to indicate that the attack was academically motivated ...

Enter Dell Chandler, failed English professor and now self-taught private detective whom Dr Cutty calls in to investigate the crime. She has the academic background to tease out possible motives among the staff and just enough experience to conduct a thorough inquiry. If she solves the case before the police do, the university could keep the whole thing quiet, avoiding a media sensation about the dark side of campus life. But to do so, she'll have to dodge some demons from her past as a disgraced academic ...

Getting Away with Murder

Shari Lapena

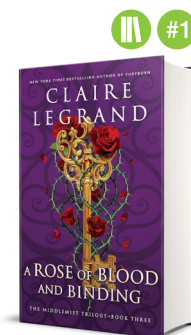

Jill and Ted adore their New York brownstone the way others adore their children. They have carefully, expensively, made every inch of it their own. It reflects who they are, their status and tastes. With the grand mahogany staircase and state-of-the-art kitchen, it is the stuff of glossy magazines and real-estate dreams. It is their sanctuary.

So when Ted's inheritance runs out and he makes a bad investment, they panic. How can they protect their beloved home and enviable lifestyle?

The answer is obvious. Or at least, it is obvious to Jill and Ted. The death of one wealthy family member – from whom they stand to inherit millions – could solve all their problems. Together, they will get away with murder.

As long as they trust each other. As long as neither makes a mistake. As long as there are no surprises ...

Road Trip

Mary Kay Andrews

Maeve and Therese Dunigan are sisters – but the two have been estranged for years. They could not be more opposite: Maeve, a rule-follower and Therese, a rebel. But when their mother's death brings the family back together, the two find that they have inherited a painting – one that could be worth millions and could save each of them from their respective wolves at the door. The only issue is the painting might be a fake and the only way they can solve the problem is to find the original. This means a road trip – to Ireland, to their family roots, and to a mysterious crime that occurred years ago.

With tensions simmering, the two hit the road and find themselves on twisty lanes, in colourful villages, at local pubs, and with handsome men whose gift of the gab is surpassed only by their charm. Can Maeve and Therese find the real painting, remove a family curse, solve a cold case and actually survive without killing each other?

My Friends

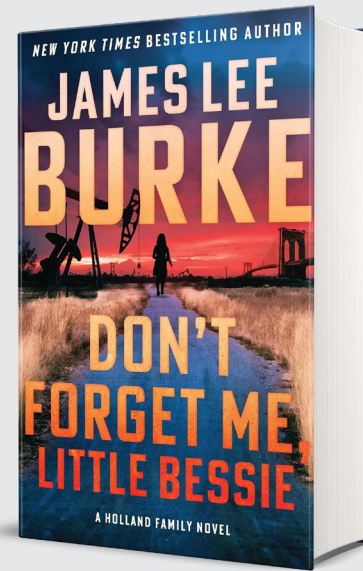

Fredrik Backman

Most people don't even notice the three tiny figures in the corner of a famous painting. But Louisa, an artist herself, sees them and is determined to find out their story.

25 years earlier. Four teenagers find refuge from their difficult home lives by spending their days laughing and telling stories out on a pier. Joar, who never backs down from a fight; Ted, mourning his father; Ali, the daughter of a man who never stays in one place for long; and the artist, a boy who shuns attention. Together, they find a reason to dream.

Out of that summer emerged a painting that has been entrusted to Louisa's care. She embarks on a cross-country journey to learn about the painting's origins and inspiration. The closer she gets to the painting's birthplace, the more she feels compelled to unleash her own artistic spirit. But happy endings don't always take the form we expect in this fresh testament to the transformative power of friendship and art.
