Last One Out

No One Stays Forever Jane Harper

He had been here, that was clear from the marks in the dust. And he had been alone.

In a dying town, Ro Crowley waits for her son on the evening of his 21st birthday.

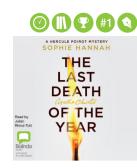

But Sam never comes home. His footprints in the dust of three abandoned houses offer the only clue to his final movements. One set in. One set out.

Five long years later, Ro returns to Carralon Ridge for the annual memorial of Sam's disappearance. The skeletal community is now an echo of itself, having fractured under the pressure of the coal mine operating on its outskirts.

But Ro still wants answers. Only a few people remain. If the truth is to be found in that town, does it lie among them?

JACK REACHER JACK REACHER Collins Co

THE WORLD'S NUMBER ONE BESTSELLER

ANDREW CHILD

INCLUDES AN EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW WITH THE AUTHORS

EXIT STRATEGY Jack Reacher will make three stops today.

Not all of them were planned for.

First - a Baltimore coffee shop. A seat in the corner, facing the door. Black coffee, two refills, no messing about. A minor interruption from two of the customers, but nothing he can't deal with swiftly. As he leaves, a young guy brushes against him in the doorway. Instinctively Reacher checks the pocket holding his cash and passport. There's no problem. Nothing is missing.

Second - a store to buy a coat. Nothing fancy. Something he can ditch when he heads to warmer climes. Large enough to fit a man the size of a bank vault. As he pulls out his cash, he finds something new in his pocket. A handwritten note. A desperate plea for help.

Third - wherever this bend in the road takes him. Impressed by the guy's technique and intrigued by the message, Reacher makes it his mission to find out more ...

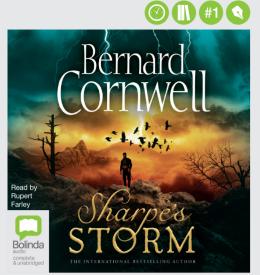

'If there is a more iconic character in modern fiction than Jack Reacher, I'd like to meet them.'

Grantlee Kieza turns his focus to the Australian wine industry and its mother, business leader and pioneering vintner Mary Penfold.

Mary left her seaside home in England in 1844 to follow her husband, Dr Christopher Rawson Penfold, to South Australia. Mary and Christopher settled on a farm in the Adelaide Hills, and as Christopher made his rounds on horseback, Mary tended grapevines and planted in the garden beside their stone cottage, The Grange. Initially making wine for medicinal use only, Mary transformed her cottage industry into an empire. She expanded her vineyard, developed new styles and built a flourishing company that supplied not only Australia's demand for high quality wine, but thirsty export markets as well.

Her brilliance as a vintner and great business mind lives on today with Penfolds Grange being one of the most sought after wines in

The Life-Changing Magic of Tidying Up

Read by Hanako Footman

In 2014, Marie Kondo became famous around the world, changed how we live and the relationship we have with the objects around us, and taught us how to seek out the joy in our daily lives. Five years later, her Netflix TV show introduced millions to her captivating charm and serene presence. And now, another five years have passed and it's time for more surprises and more ground to be broken.

So much has changed in the world in the last decade but one constant is our fascination with Japan. The more people learn about Japanese culture the more entranced they become, learning how Japanese people combine an ultra-modern lifestyle with a deep respect for ancient customs and traditions. In Marie Kondo, we have a world-famous authentic communicator and guide inviting us in, illuminating how ancient ways of thinking apply to our modern lives around the globe.

Letter from Japan is an invitation to explore Japan's customs and traditions, and how these ways of thinking inform Kondo's life and her famous life-changing tidying method.

'An inspirational, deeply reflective memoir-cum-lifestyle guide, exploring the elements of Japanese culture that have shaped and enriched her own worldview and the rewards of combining modern lifestyle with a deep respect for ancient customs and traditions.'

HEATHER MORRIS

A powerful story about family, resilience and finding hope, from the #1 global bestselling author of The Tattooist of Auschwitz.

Teenager Jesse loves her friends, her little brother and her parents. She also loves playing interactive computer games from her hospital bed in the children's cancer ward.

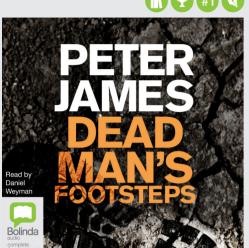

When Jesse is offered the chance to have her greatest wish fulfilled, she immediately knows what she wants: a digital 3D recreation of her life - something for her friends and family to watch and relive ... perhaps without her.

There is only one person with the technical skills and creativity to make this happen - the highly talented but reclusive Alex, a visionary 3D CGI video/games designer. Unlike Jesse, Alex doesn't love a lot of things. To be honest, he's not really sure he knows how to. He's in his late 20s, but his troubled past has left him wary of forming any kind of emotional relationship.

But when he enters Jesse's world, his journey towards connection begins. A beautiful and unexpected friendship blossoms between the desperately ill teenager and the isolated young man, changing both of their lives - and those of the people around them - forever.
