The Frozen People

An Ali Dawson Mystery #1
Elly Griffiths

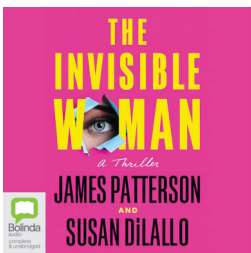

Ali Dawson and her cold case team investigate crimes so old, they're frozen – or so their inside joke goes. Most people don't know that they travel back in time to complete their research.

The latest assignment sees Ali venture back farther than they have dared before – to 1850s London in order to clear the name of Cain Templeton, the eccentric great-grandfather of MP Isaac Templeton. Rumour has it that Cain was part of a sinister group called The Collectors; to become a member, you had to kill a woman ...

Fearing for her safety in the middle of a freezing Victorian winter, Ali finds herself stuck in time, unable to make her way back to her life, her beloved colleagues and her son, Finn, who suddenly finds himself in legal trouble in the present day.

Could the two cases be connected?

How to Kill Your Biggest Fan

Helen Blair

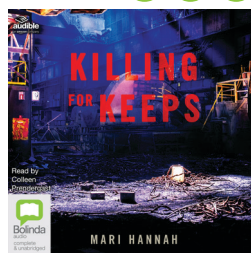

Bestselling romance author Hazel Witt has been writing for 20 years, has an army of loyal fans, and delivers sell-out events with every new book she writes.

But Hazel hates romance, hates her readers, and is completely disillusioned with the publishing industry. Her sales are dwindling. When she comes across a disturbing letter from her biggest fan, Margo Martin, Hazel descends down a rabbit hole investigating Margo's past.

Margo has spent years being obsessed with Hazel – using her books as literal bibles, taking the events in her novels as dating advice, and believing that the characters within are real.

As Hazel searches for Margo, a cat and mouse back and forth ensues, with Margo seemingly one step ahead at every turn. Can Hazel escape the woman who has turned out to be a deranged stalker, desperate for love? Or does she need Margo more than Margo needs her?

Misinterpretation

Ledia Xhoga

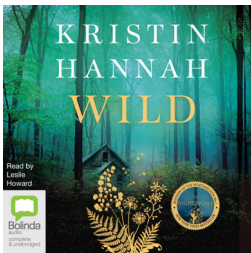

Albania was a country that made you uneasy and tense, but alert and alive. It infuriated, exasperated, without apology or retribution, and yet one felt seen here, often even loved. The urge to escape its stifling confinement was tinged with unexpected melancholy – for foreigners and natives alike.

In present-day New York City, an Albanian interpreter reluctantly agrees to work with Alfred, a Kosovar torture survivor, during his therapy sessions. Despite her husband's cautions, she soon becomes entangled in her clients' struggles – Alfred's nightmares stir up her own buried memories, and an impulsive attempt to help a Kurdish poet leads to a risky encounter and a reckless plan.

As ill-fated decisions stack up, jeopardising the nameless narrator's marriage and mental health, she takes a spontaneous trip to reunite with her mother in Albania, where her life in the United States is put into stark relief. When she returns to face the consequences of her actions, she must question what is real and what is not.

The Weekend Break

Ruth O'Leary

Vivienne's perfect life is a facade, and she at last wants out. She needs a divorce fast.

Helen's nightly glass of wine has become a bottle or two, and her drinking is threatening her marriage.

Clara feels she must lie to her husband to save her sanity and reach towards some freedom.

Miriam, wanting to change her life, does so in the most dramatic way possible. Her friends are supportive when she tells them, but she knows there is still a hidden truth that can never be exposed.

Their weekend away in Galway has life-changing consequences. As the weekend unfolds and their secrets are laid bare, will it be too much for some to cope with?

Will their friendship and loyalty to each other survive the weekend break and its painful aftermath?

KRISTIN HANNAH WILD

Don't take peace for granted, he'd said to her often. It can shatter like glass.

In the rugged Pacific Northwest of the United States lies the Olympic National Forest – a vast expanse of impenetrable darkness and impossible beauty. From deep within this mysterious woodland, a six-year-old girl appears. Speechless and alone, she offers no clue as to her identity, no hint of her past.

Having retreated to her hometown after a scandal left her career in ruins, child psychiatrist Dr Julia Cates begins working with the extraordinary little girl. Naming her Alice, Julia is determined to free her from a prison of unimaginable fear and isolation, and discover the truth about Alice's past. The shocking facts of Alice's life test the limits of Julia's faith and strength, even as she struggles to make a home for Alice – and find a new one for herself.

Wild is an ideal beach buddy, one of those addictive page turners we all crave.

Overwhelmed

Ways to Take the Pressure Off

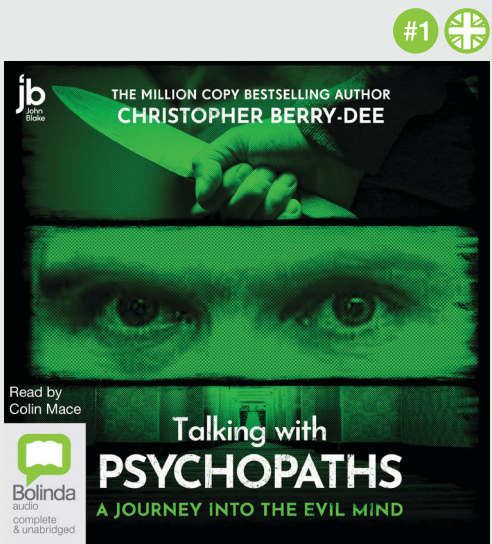

Claudia Hammond

There's too much to do in too little time. The demands made on us and the pressure put on us seem relentless. We expect more of ourselves. And yet completing even everyday tasks is a struggle. There is always something new, something more, something better. Even switching off seems more difficult these days. How can we make it ... STOP?

All of us are familiar with this unsettling sensation of acceleration – the feeling that there's ever more to do, and ever less time in which to do it. This is overwhelm – that persistent feeling that you can't cope, that the demands on you are excessive, that you can't see a way out.

In this liberating new audiobook, award-winning author and presenter of BBC Radio 4's All in the Mind Claudia Hammond helps us to take the pressure off with a psychological toolkit that is both practical and evidence-based. Each chapter addresses a particular problem related to the sensation of being overwhelmed.

Talking with Psychopaths

A Journey into the Evil Mind

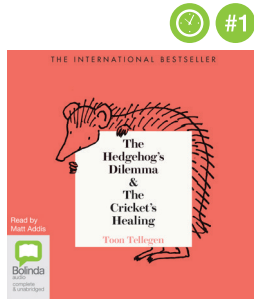

Christopher Berry-Dee

Having spent years interviewing imprisoned criminals – including notorious serial killers – Christopher Berry-Dee discovered that the lack of remorse these people showed was in many ways even more terrifying than the crimes they had committed. Yet in the course of these conversations, the author also had the chance to interview his subjects' psychiatrists and, in doing so, uncovered a terrible truth: a monster can be hidden behind a friendly face.

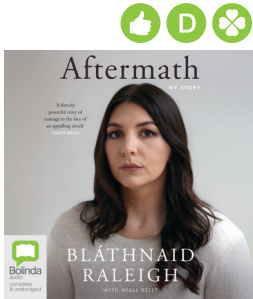

Some of these experts, he found, proved to have more in common with their patients than he would ever have expected. This audiobook examines horrific crimes committed by some of the most remorseless and merciless people ever to have lived. If it reveals a mindset wholly alien to most people, it also, shockingly, demonstrates that some of the people who treat these psychopaths have their own demons.

This chilling study of the darkest of criminal minds will inevitably shift the listener's view of psychopaths, and in doing so, reveals that horror can be much closer to us than we think ...

Matt Addis

The Hedgehog's Dilemma: The hedgehog is feeling rather lonely, so one day he decides to invite all the other animals for a party. But the hedgehog is also rather a shy, reserved animal and is terribly worried about doing or saying something he shouldn't, and about all the things that could go wrong.

What if nobody comes? What if too many of them come? What if the elephant shows up and breaks all the furniture? Will anyone be able to hear the hedgehog talk above the frog's croaking? Maybe inviting the others over wasn't such a good idea after all ...

The Cricket's Healing: One day, the cricket notices a strange feeling in his head – a heavy, unwavering feeling. The animals start calling him 'the gloomy cricket'. Only after a long time and a lot of effort does that feeling disappear from his head again.

'Those in search of a cosy, gently delivered philosophy will melt.'

Instructions for Heartbreak

Sarah Handyside

What if heartbreak came with a manual?

It starts with a late-night knock on the door. Katie's three best friends share a flat in South London, while Katie lives close by with her boyfriend. But when her nine-year relationship ends – suddenly and brutally – she turns up on her friends' doorstep with no idea what to do next.

Out comes the martini shaker (an old, well-washed gherkin jar), an unused sketchbook and an idea. They'll make Katie the handbook she needs to process her heartbreak and start rebuilding her life.

But Katie is not the only one nursing a broken heart. With notes on everything from tears and hangovers to new bedding and white-hot rage, could the heartbreak handbook they intended for Katie contain the words they all need to hear?

The Girl From Poor House Lane

She will do anything to protect her child

How far will a mother go to protect her child?

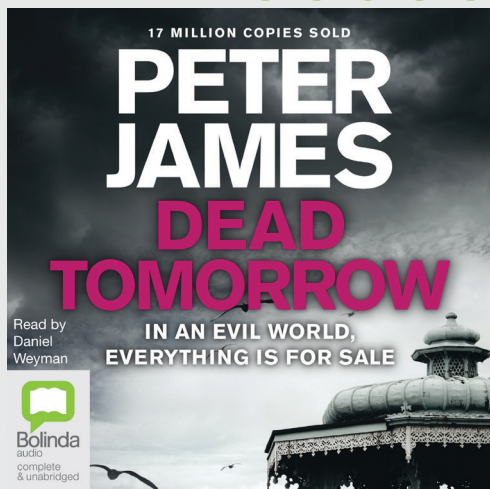

The slums of Poor House Lane are no place to bring up a child, and Kate O'Connor struggles to make ends meet when her beloved husband is killed, leaving her a single mother with a baby to support on the meagre handouts she gleans from charity. So when the childless Tysons, owners of Kendal's shoe factory, offer to adopt her son, Callum, and employ Kate as his nanny, she seizes the chance to ensure he has a better life.

To be so close to her son, yet no longer be his mother, is bittersweet. But Kate is not prepared for the jealousy the new arrangement provokes in Eliot Tyson's brother, Charles, who sees Callum as a direct threat to his inheritance ...
