Big Little Truths

Big Little Lies #2
Liane Moriarty

What's worse than a big little lie? An even bigger little truth.

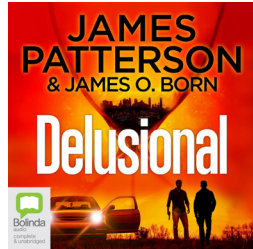

It has been a decade since the ill-fated quiz night at Pirriwee High. A man died. Accusations of murder were rife. For Madeline, Celeste and Jane, the fallout still feels like it happened yesterday. Never mind that their kids have grown into grouchy teenagers.

Madeline is carefully planning her 50th birthday party, little realising she's about to be upstaged. Jane is so busy congratulating herself on her happy marriage, she hasn't noticed it's not. While Celeste, haunted by memories of her dead husband, fears what her mother-in-law will do next.

When the school receives an anonymous package containing a severed human finger, (un-severed) fingers get pointed. Is this mischief, incrimination or even murder? A secret just waiting to come out?

What is clear is that the truth will always hurt someone ...

Eyes on You

Adele Parks

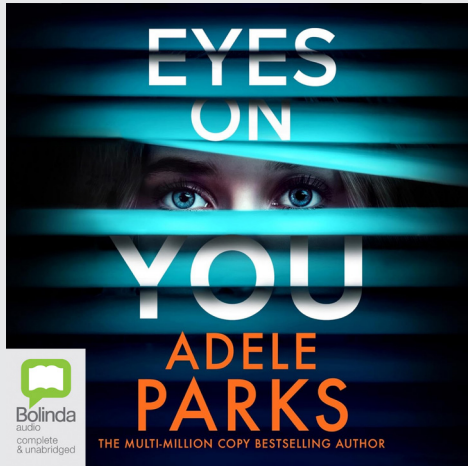

Be afraid. Someone's watching.

At 15, Amy witnessed her father brutally murder his secret lover. Her testimony sealed her father's fate. With him in prison, Amy and her mother must rebuild their lives in the shadow of a notorious crime.

Years later, Oliver Harrington walks into the restaurant where Amy works. Just like Amy, Oliver has a past he'd rather forget. Amy is drawn to him at a profound level; they feel a connection, an understanding ...

This seems a lot like love, but does it hide something darker – an obsession that could lead Amy into a web of deception and violence she thought she'd escaped? As the truth looms ever closer, Amy must confront a harsh reality: where there is love, there is often betrayal.

Taipei Story

R.F. Kuang

Yale student Lily Chen arrives in Taipei hungry: for family, for culture, for connection.

But her summer of discovery quickly unravels. Her classes are gruelling, her roommate unbearable, and a reckless, deeply awkward trip to the hot springs with a guy she barely knows soon ignites vicious gossip.

Then her grandfather dies. Grieving and adrift, Lily must confront her own questions about the culture she inherited but never fully understood. She embarks on a wryly funny, often devastating search for understanding: of herself, her family and the meaning of home.

All over one unforgettable summer in Taipei.

Love Unlocked

Cecelia Ahern

Sometimes the key is letting go ...

Melody has vowed never to fall in love again. Al is a hopeless romantic. So, when they quite literally bump into each other, there's no reason sparks should fly. But the world seems a little upside down lately.

A few weeks ago, Al ordered the removal of all the lovers' padlocks from one of Dublin's beautiful bridges. Ever since then, couples across the world have started splitting up.

And as Melody begins investigating this mysterious wave of breakups for her podcast, it seems there might be a bigger story to tell.

Together, they decide to uncover what's unravelling so many love stories. And, in the middle of solving everyone else's heartbreak, can they unlock their own?

LIONEL SHRIVER

WE NEED TO TALK ABOUT KEVIN

Eva never really wanted to be a mother – and certainly not the mother of the unlovable boy who murdered seven of his fellow high school students, a cafeteria worker and a much-adored teacher who tried to befriend him, all two days before his 16th birthday.

Now, two years later, it is time for her to come to terms with marriage, career, family, parenthood and Kevin's horrific rampage in a series of startlingly direct correspondences with her estranged husband, Franklin.

Uneasy with the sacrifices and social demotion of motherhood from the start, Eva fears that her alarming dislike for her own son may be responsible for driving him so nihilistically off the rails.

'Impossible to put down ... Who, in the end, needs to talk about Kevin? Maybe we all do.'

—The Boston Globe

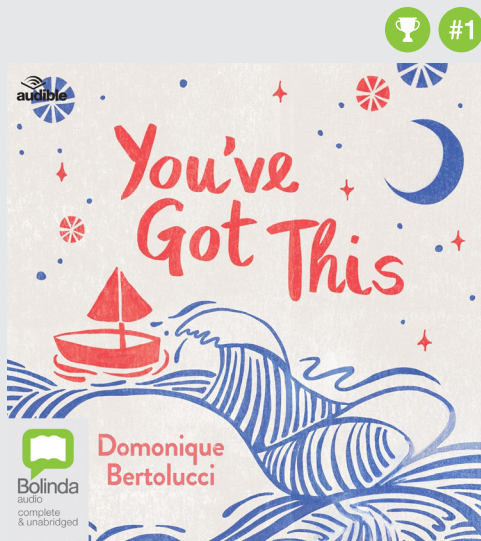

'We Need to Talk About Kevin is an original, powerful, resonant, witty, fascinating and deeply intelligent work.'

You've Got This

101 Ways to Boost Your Confidence, Nurture Your Spirit and Remind Yourself That Everything Is Going to Be Okay
Domonique Bertolucci

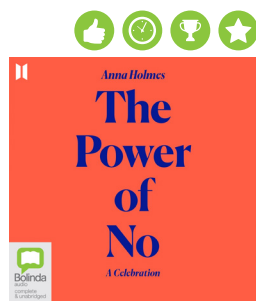

All too often, we find ourselves asking, 'why don't I have what others have?' In You've Got This, Bertolucci refocuses our attention to the things we might already have: a home filled with laughter, a child's love, compassionate friends, good health that lets us live life to the full – there is much to be thankful for. Turning our minds to what we have, rather than what we don't, brings back the joy of living.

You've Got This shows us how to be generous to ourselves and gain more time and energy to enjoy the things that really do matter. It invites us to make simple changes to the way we think: changes that will leave us feeling more relaxed, calm and confident, instead of stressed and overwhelmed, and over time, make our lives happier.

The Wrong Rom-Com

Lulu Dawson

Writer Rachel loves dreaming up happy endings for her characters, while her husband Matt believes everything happens for a reason. When Rachel decides they need a new beginning, she gives fate a helping hand and makes Matt believe a move to the seaside is written in the stars.

Her plan works brilliantly ... until fate bites back.

Rachel's manipulation has set a different version of their story in motion, plunging them into a rom-com make-over, including a meet-cute with new love interest Seth. Except Rachel doesn't want it. The harder she resists, the more it seems her old life is relegated to backstory – and Matt is no longer her leading man.

With only her friend Anna to help, Rachel must find her way before the love of her life walks out of it forever.

Can she escape the wrong rom-com?

Pearl is on holiday at an exclusive hotel – the newly remodelled Villa Pellegrini. She's looking forward to the break, not least because DCI Mike McGuire has been neglecting her due to his work. But when she discovers that she's actually booked in for a cookery course from the Italian celebrity chef, Nico Caruso, she begins to think again ...

Pearl doesn't welcome instruction on cookery, and certainly not from an arrogant chef like Caruso. She goes along, intent on challenging Caruso's egotism, but soon finds herself distracted, not only by her enchanting surroundings but by the disparate selection of guests.

She even begins to enjoy Caruso's attentions until one of the guests goes missing and it becomes clear that murder is on the menu ...
